Notice Concerning Acquisition of “Green Star” Rating in GRESB Survey

Kenedix Realty Investment Corporation (“the Investment Corporation”) announced that it has acquired a “Green Star” rating in the 2013 Global Real Estate Sustainability Benchmark (“GRESB”) Survey.

1. “Green Star” Rating

The Investment Corporation received a “Green Star” rating for the second consecutive year as its efforts for improving sustainability performance was evaluated.

The “Green Star” rating, which the Investment Corporation received today, is the highest in the four available categories. The Investment Corporation was ranked first among eight players in Japan’s office building division.

The Investment Corporation’s following efforts for improving sustainability were evaluated in the 2013 GRESB Survey.

- Establishment of a vision and targets for and creation of a management system for sustainability
- Measurement and optimization of management performance through the implementation of sustainability policies and strategies
- Establishment of a system of collaboration with stakeholders for the improvement of sustainability performance

2. GRESB Survey

GRESB is a benchmark established primarily by major European pension fund groups in 2009 that measures sustainability performance in the real estate sector. More than 50 leading institutional investors with total assets under management of approx. 610 trillion yen ($6.1 trillion assuming $1 = 100 yen) have joined as of September 2013 and use GRESB in the process of real estate investment and management.

Furthermore, the GRESB Survey has been gaining much attention as institutional investors use the GRESB survey to select investment targets. There were 543 real estate companies, REITs and private real estate funds worldwide that participated in the 2013 GRESB Survey.
